Meeting with Fire and Emergency – 20 May 2024

s 9(2)(a)

- Door handles. s 9(2)(ba)(i) has written to them in the last days regarding them. Noted that most exit gates for ECEs are high (pool-style), may not technically meet the Building Code. More recently several buildings have been declined – since Loafers Lodge event there has been a stricter approach by relevant regulators. An ECE building owner might be seeking a determination on this issue in the near future.
- FENZ has direct role in ECE licencing in terms of approving evacuation schemes.
- Potential gap. May be differences in FENZ regulation/ECE regulation regarding who needs evacuation schemes or not, and concern that larger community-based ECEs weren't subject to the requirements [this might be a difference in definitions between them, and if the requirement sits with providers or the building owners]. Expect that the evacuation scheme requirements would apply to all ECEs, and there is long term benefits in kids learning evacuation procedures at a young age.
- General issue with FENZ reg. Where ECEs are providing care for children with disabilities, their fire procedure should allow for additional assistance needs in evacuating them (e.g. 1 staff member could help 10 able children leave in a fire, but 1 staff member may have difficulty in getting 10 children with disabilities to safety) I understand this issue is broader than ECE alone, but may be potential to signal.

Neil Miller, Principal Advisor, Sector Review.

- This was an initial exploratory meeting about the issue of emergency exit and evacuation from a ECE building.
- The issue of door handle heights has been raised by providers as a long-standing issue. They highlight causing a potential safety risk of children exiting the building unsupervised and inconsistency in interpretation.
- Ministry for Regulation is looking at the emergency exit/evacuation issue as a case study. As the timeline is 2024 for our report, we do not expect to solve the problem but would wish to identify regulatory 'ownership' and options for the issues identified to be resolved.
- Independent Qualified Persons have not been signing off more buildings (due to increased liabilities?)
- FENZ manages the behaviour of the people in evacuation.
- There are safety risks to children in a 'place of safety' because they must be allowed to freely disperse.
- Confusion of definitions – trial evacuation per term but childcare unlike schools does not have terms. Agreed that quarterly appropriate.
- Swimming pool requirements for external gates are already accepted by MBIE so could be a similar provision for ECE.
- Fire and Emergency New Zealand \(Fire Safety, Evacuation Procedures, and Evacuation Schemes\) Regulations 2018
- The Evacuation Scheme approval is in perpetuity but can be revoked. (Can MfR confirm that pre-2018 approved schemes can be revoked).
- A problem is that the regulations are to the building owner and not the ECE licence holder.
